Dust of Soul: “It’s about respect, passion and love”

The career of the singer, songwriter and composer Saskia Stäuble (aka Dusty), born in Basel, Switzerland, and pianist and composer Michael Odermatt (aka MiKey), born in Lucerne, Switzerland, has started in New York, the city where dreams come true. All songs are written and composed by Dusty & MiKey and strong with Dusty’s distinctive soulful voice and touching with MiKey’s unique lyrical piano playing crowned with a touch of Broadway Musical. From the first concert in New York City, a mystical performance in a Swiss castle, to a special atmosphere with standing ovation in Tunisia, their music is for everyone.

The authentic and revolutionary songs go a hundred percent out of their lives, and cover practically all facets of the same universal themes of every human being: From the courage to dream big, the determination to pursue the own dream, the belief in the good of people through to dealing with doubt, confusion and clear decisions. There are people who speak of it as a new kind of music genre and describe it as “pure music coming from deep out of the heart”.

Their self-created philosophy – “It’s about respect, passion and love” – reflects the respect towards the fans, encourages the living of the passion and inspires with true love they find in the music. The character of the concerts corresponds literally with “Dust of Soul”, stirring up the dust from the soul. This is for the guest always an intensive and moving experience.

The Swiss duo Dust of Soul gives concerts all around the world and is currently working on their debut album. Over all one thing is certain: Music is not only a creative work for Dusty & MiKey, it is their purpose in life.
